ITS PAST

Hickory High School's past has been a complexity of growth, challenges, changes, defeats, and victories. Her past is a record of all the problems she has faced — some with the community, the nation, and the world; others by herself. Hers is the memory of a four-teacher faculty, of bobby socks, of a new science building, of boy-girl stairs, of an open-lunch period.

Tradition, too, is embodied in the past. Despite the fact that new students arrive each year, this makes them aware of what they must achieve and exceed as part of H.H.S. The worn stairwells, shiny doorknobs on ancient doors, an old clock still on the wall silenced by the new, the carved desk tops, the trophy cases—all are evidences of the past. And the walls of the buildings seem to assimilate earlier events and radiate them to create an atmosphere of warmth, of responsibility, of tradition. Although we were not part of it, H.H.S. reveals to us a past which directs her present and her prospects, as well as our own.

ITS PRESENT

The present is a unique combination of people, prospects, progress, past and phases. This is the present, 1965-1966: sporadic grass fires . . . year of W. D. Cottrell's retirement . . . enlargement of guidance department . . . pierced ears . . . senior-sophomore compatibility . . . closed lunch period . . . largest faculty in H.H.S.'s history . . . open houses at Holy Trinity . . . four Merit semi-finalists . . . tennis team undefeated for two years . . . quantum theory . . . five successive days of school missed due to snow . . . H.H.S. is desegregated . . . Library convention held at H.H.S. . . . TWIG and LOG change printing styles . . . new lunchroom open . . . no activity period . . . five teachers attend National English Convention in Boston . . . Southern Association accreditation is continued . . . Batman . . . new basketball and football uniforms . . . Band and Chorus councils organized . . . both phases of Drivers' Training is offered throughout school year . . . Band marches in new uniforms . . . Ron Paraan is A.F.S.'er from Philippines . . . A.F.S. sends Dinny Harper to Sweden, Sol Zerden to New Zealand, and Beverly Rowe to Japan.

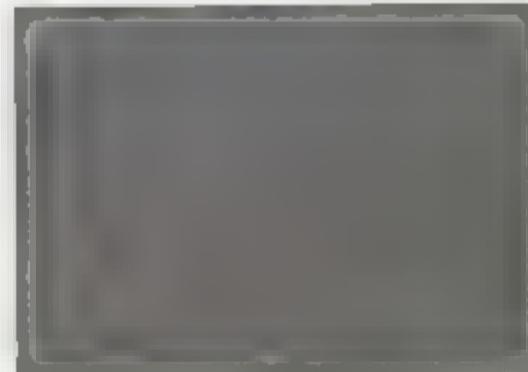

ITS PEOPLE

Who are the people of Hickory High School? Contemplating answers to this question, one realizes that the people of H.H.S. are students—youth who learn and unlearn, search and sometimes find—and they are teachers, counselors, and administrators whose lives and goals are focused on the development of youth. H.H.S. then, is her people, and these people give H.H.S. her life, her character, her personality, her traditions. These people are the essence of her past, present, and prospects.

The enormity of being H.H.S. requires both variety and unity. Her people—scholars, athletes, leaders, conformists, individualists, teachers—all impart to her some of their individual personalities, giving H.H.S. its color and vibrancy. Yet this multitude of seemingly unrelated individuals is the unified composite of H.H.S.—a unity achieved in the realm of youth. Despite the fact that the hopes, goals, and ideas of these people are as sundry as the people who cherish them and that many of H.H.S.'s people are chronologically unrelated, they all exhibit the intangible qualities of youth. Thus, these, separated by time and personality, yet united in the realm of youth, are bound together with the distinction of being the people of Hickory High School.

ITS PHASES

From the world of current events to the sweaty smell of a gym to the tinkle of test tubes—to these and many other aspects of the learning process, the people of H.H.S. are exposed each day. Responsible for these experiences are her people. For them H.H.S. has offered opportunities for the development of a multitude of interests, plans, and enjoyments. The roar of a crowd cheering its team, the multisonant realm of violins, trumpets, and kettle drums, the tedious preparation of a newspaper—these have evolved from an effort to meet the multi-faceted needs of her people; these are the phases of Hickory High School.

With every new student, every individual class, every new year, new beginnings and ideas unfold in Hickory High School

Each student who is entrusted to HHS is another of her prospects. Engaged in an interdependent relationship, she instills in him all of her molding characteristics. The student in return offers his enthusiasm, his problems, his needs, and these evolve into prospects — progress unfocused. New advanced courses, a new gym, technical science labs — all of these and many others are the things for which HHS must plan as she continues in her never-ending process of preparing young men and women for a changing world. Engaged in this task, she is constantly aware that these new goals are her true prospects — her people

ITS PROSPECTS

ITS PROGRESS

Hickory High School's progress has emerged from her prospects in the past to realities in the present. It is the materialization of plans and ambitions conceived by her leaders and administrators—her people. Motivating these goals have been the requirements of increasing student bodies and the quest for higher academic excellence. A new library, language lab, and lunch room, math I and II, Spanish III, technical teaching aids — these were hopes and dreams embedded in her past which are now realities in her present. This is the progress of Hickory High School.

DEDICATEE

For more than three decades, W. D. Cottrell has been the spirit of Hickory High School. Whether his talents were needed as a professional leader, as a supervisor of teachers, as a consistent and enthusiastic rooter for H.H.S. sports, or as an adviser of students—whatever the call, Mr. Cottrell answered. His words, his responses, his decisions were chosen with only one criterion—would they benefit Hickory High School?

It is impossible to imagine anyone with Mr. Cottrell's multifaceted interests and personality ever truly retiring. As time passes, this physically-active and intellectually-alive leader of three generations of Hickory youth will still be searching for the "new."

Thus because his students will not forget his contributions to their school and to their lives, because his staff will find it difficult to believe he can be replaced, and because to thousands of local people, Hickory High School is W. D. Cottrell; the student body and the LOG staff, privileged to have known you, dedicate the 1966 Hickory LOG to you.

LUNCHROOM WALKWAYS provide an ample parking area for HHS's most "moving" fad—Hondas!

For many HHS students, the beginning of school marks the end of a long, lazy summer of just plain loafing. Others have put their talents and energies to work at summer jobs. A six weeks term in summer school filled the time for others. However, when the first bell rings, each sunburned, rested individual once again becomes an integral part of the student body. We begin to function once more as a unit—cheering the team to victory at pep rallies and football games, electing class officers, and participating in the countless activities of Hickory High's various clubs.

IN THE MIDST of new friends, a strange school, and a different way of life, Ronnie pauses and reflects on myriad experiences Obscure names and faces from an unknown town half-way around the world emerged into distinct personalities for Filipino exchange student Ronald Paraon. Thousands of miles between home and friends have not diminished Ron's ready smile and warm friendliness. Already fluent in English, language proved to be no barrier to this young Filipino.

As a Hickory High student, Ronnie participates in Student Council, French Club and Engineers' Club. To further his knowledge of his adopted country, Ron studies American literature and U. S. History. Besides these many school activities, Ron plays the guitar and sings in a folk group, "The Watchmen."

RELAXED to hear a Southern drawl exchangee Dinny Harper chats with a Texan acquaintance outside her school in Sweden

Occidental, Oriental Awareness

Three months after hearing her first word of Swedish, HHS. exchange student Dinny Harper was taking honor courses at her school in Djurshorn completely in Swedish. Dinny finds Sweden and the United States much alike except for Sweden's lack of automobiles. "I've gotten holes in the bottoms of my shoes from walking."

Highlighting Dinny's stay was her Christmas visit to Horsens, Denmark, home of her sister Sussi Hansen, exchangee to HHS last year. Even in another country, Dinny is still on her toes. Traveling to Stockholm daily, she continues her private ballet lessons.

WITH admiring glances from her Japanese sisters, Beverly demonstrates American ingenuity in the ancient Oriental art of china painting.

From the first "Konnichiwa" in the Tokyo International Airport to the last echos of "Sayonara" three months later, Beverly Rowe lived among the Japanese people as one of their own, participating in the American Field Service program. From her very first taste of raw fish, squid, octopus, and eel, to her last day of school after five weeks of oriental education, a memory of faces, experiences, and untold friendships evolved. A Japanese birthday party, classes in ceremonial dance, a trip to Hiroshima, Buddhist temples, chopsticks —each a small part of a short summer, but a large portion of a fantastic experience.

HEAD CHEERLEADER CONNIE HOWARD embodies pep and leadership, the qualities which captured the title of Hickory High Carousel Princess.

End of summer—herald of winter—fall is the transitory season. Lusty cheers and fighting spirits usher in the first football game of the year. With a flurry of anticipation, students plan Homecoming festivities. Fall is a time for study, for with the end of the first six weeks comes the realization that school becomes increasingly more difficult each year. Thanksgiving vacation rescues students from studies and gives weary teachers a respite from grading papers. The leaves have fallen, fall is over, and H H S. is resting, too, before the "long grind"—the winter term.

"PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT" personifies the Homecoming participants as they rehearse for their presentation at the game

Unforeseen defeat, the sovereignty of a newly-elected queen, open house for students, and a dance highlighted the 1965-66 Homecoming Weekend. Festivities began on Friday night as spectators viewed Watauga manipulating a decisive victory over the Hickory Reds. Half-time activities released the mounting tension of the game as the stands anticipated the arrival of Homecoming participants. Sponsors were presented, but each on-looker's eye was secretly cast downfield, each seeking that first glimpse of the queen. Connie Howard, displaying the charm which won her honor, paraded royally on the arm of Robert Lackey, Student Council President. With an armful of red roses, a kiss, and a regal crown, Connie began her reign as Homecoming Queen.

Although winter is a time of dormancy for nature, H H S finds winter a season of action. At the close of the football stint, basketball heads the list for sport fans. An air of festivity encompasses H H S. as clubs and organizations hurriedly plan Christmas and New Year's activities. The first snowfall of the season offers the perfect opportunity for students to dust off their sleds or build snowmen. Concentrated study and apprehensive moments culminate in the long taxing semester exams. Then come dreams of spring and the Jr.-Sr.

Late hours, long phone calls, critical analyses, fatigue are facets of the dread of perennial semester exams. A bell rings, and students hurriedly take their seats. In the unusually hushed silence, the teacher gives instructions. Last minute peeks are taken at notebooks and someone suddenly discovers his pencil is unsharpened.

Tests are distributed. Some start at once, others peruse the questions thoroughly. Students realize last minute cramming is no substitute for retained knowledge. Two and a half hours, three pencils, and a sheaf of paper later, students with a resolve on their lips to begin studying earlier, celebrate the new semester with well-earned elation.

Eyes Wander from Chalky Blackboards to Opened Windows,

Spring comes to HHS, bringing warm breezes, bright cotton dresses, gentle rains, green-leaved trees, the Junior-Senior, and a feeling of rebirth. Restless students hopefully plan beach trips and summer jobs. Thoughts yield to the prospect of the future as seniors receive word of their college acceptance, juniors take SAT, and sophomores plan schedules. With spring also comes the realization of the end of another year of study, and for many, the end of their high school career.

Tension mounted to a heady pitch as the curtains opened and closed on the sixty- the forty- and finally on the twenty-five contestants. In interludes between presentations, a student folk-singing group, a modern dance ensemble, and a ballet eased tension felt by both contestants and audience. The evening's climax was the judges' announcement of the ten finalists. Even after the pageant had ended, the suspense had not; for the most beautiful and her runner-up were yet to be decided by John Wayne, HHS's favorite performer.

ENTHUSIASTIC PARENTS and students look on as the HHS auditorium resounds with the talents of her offspring

Musical scores, witty monologues and dance routines reverberated through the crowded auditorium as the hidden talents of HHS students emerged before expectant parents and students. In its third season, the talent show was sponsored by the Student Council which conducted auditions for performers and provided judges and jokes, thus smoothly correlating the program. The presentation of prizes in both amateur and professional divisions concluded the 1966 Talent Show.

P.T.A. REPRESENTATIVES

Open House—a time when parents appear as hopelessly lost as sophomores while trying to locate their child's classes. A time when assistance is rendered by P.T.A. Representatives as mothers and fathers enter into the academic surroundings of H.H.S.

Acting as the middle men between parents and faculty, the members' duties include collecting P.T.A. membership fees, acting as guides at monthly meetings, and keeping parents up-to-date on forthcoming assemblies.

SCHEDULES and stairways perplex Mrs. Sinclair at P.T.A. Open House.

HALL MONITORS

They might resemble sophomores lost in the confusion of high school, but these solitary students are really members of a comparatively new organization at Hickory High—the Hall Monitors. On duty during class changes, these seniors, headed by the Senior Class officers, strive for an efficient, orderly, and relatively quiet change. They police the halls, preventing congestion at the stairs and smoking in the buildings.

JUNIOR MARSHALS dream of the time when they will belong to the gray file of caps, gowns, and mortar boards of graduation

BETA CLUB

Dinner jackets and formals replace gold and black pins as members of the Beta Club escort graduating seniors. Junior Marshals work with such dignity that all phases of the ceremony are perfect Juniors possessing the highest academic averages attain this honor

A new system of evaluating grades of members was initiated this year. Quality points give distinction to various tracks of study. In this system true academic achievement is given more recognition.

As an affiliate of the national organization, Beta Club officers attend an annual convention, which was held in 1965 in Asheville, N. C. Classes and lectures by state and national officers give members new information which is transmitted to home clubs

LEAVES

From desks of English teachers come student poetry, essays, and short stories which are examined by the LEAVES staff for excellence and originality. Manuscripts meeting their criteria are polished and fitted into the layouts of the magazine. The editorial, business, and art sections unite to present a periodical which reflects the ideas of individuals and the literary ability and creativity of the student body. The LEAVES is financed by its sale of ads, the Student Directory, and plastic annual covers. Combined efforts of writers, artists, and ad-salesmen yield a collection of student art and creative writing.

TWIG

Journalists and ad-sellers of the TWIG experience sweat and tension. The editorial and business sections produce a newspaper of mutual interest to students and teachers. This year the bi-weekly journal is edited in an offset print. Introduction of more informal pictures than in previous years is part of the new format. A type-setting machine, the Vari-Typer, is a great time saver for the staff. By spacing words to fit the columns, this device justifies the right margin.

Honors brought home by delegates last year were Medalist at Columbia and first place at NSPA and SIPA. TWIG news and photography were awarded first place rating in state competition.

LOG

Secrecy, painstaking plans, and boundless energy contribute to the efforts of creating an award-winning LOG. Seemingly endless hours of hard work for penman and solicitors alike were rewarded by the ratings of Medalist at Columbia and All-American in NSPA competition in 1965.

Pioneering and experimenting, this year's LOG is introducing the combination of two- and three-column layouts. There are more pictures and less copy than in previous years, and screened gray blocks are replacing color.

Remuneration for the task of "putting the book to bed" comes in spring, when the published annual is presented to the student body on "LOG Day." Soon after the secrets are out, new editors begin "brain storming" for next year's Hickory LOG.

RADIO

Whether the person at the intercom or on the air is garrulous or laconic, his voice guarantees up-to-date school news. By presenting "Hickory Hi Speaks" every Saturday morning on Station WIRC, this staff relays the latest Hickory High School news and features to the community. Members also keep the student body and faculty informed by making announcements each morning and afternoon over the school's public address system.

Highlighting every year is "Radio Day" when members join the regular WIRC announcers for one day. Writing commercials, making news and weather broadcasts, and acting as disc jockeys gives the group valuable experience in radio broadcasting. Staffers entered taped programs in competition at SIPA last year, received achievement rating.

CHESS CLUB

The white queen's pawn moves to the queen's second as the game of intense concentration and premeditated strategy begins. Every year the Chess Club introduces the challenge of competition to students who enjoy the game and who want to further develop their skill. Once each month, members assemble to plan meets with other conference schools. One day each year is devoted to Chess Day at Hickory High with visiting area schools competing. The winning team and triumphant individual are awarded trophies for their superior strategies. Technique exchange between players trains those who not only want to enjoy the comaraderie of the club, but who want to develop a hobby with the carry-over values of analytical thinking and problem solving.

CHORUS

Raw voices become polished instruments as choral members learn the art of performance through intensive training. At Christmas, the Chorus travels to the North Carolina Orthopedic Hospital in Gastonia to sing to the children. Long rehearsals in the spring culminate when the groups compete in the district contest held in Charlotte.

This group spends class time studying music history and theory. Nineteen selected members go to Greensboro in the spring for a music festival. A recent amendment to this organization is the Chorus Council, composed of a dozen elected members.

Volunteer Services Provide Health Career Explorations

HEALTH CAREERS CLUB

Soft steps, gentle hands, and warm smiles are essentials for girls in public health careers. Speakers, films, and practical service teach members of the Health Careers Club about social work, nursing, and medical careers. Members gain useful experience in caring for others by helping serve supper at the North Carolina Lutheran Home for the Aged, gathering toys and clothing for the Empty Stocking Fund, and visiting invalids. Each year delegates travel to the Health Careers Congress in Charlotte, where skits and displays are presented by committees illustrating health vocations.

H.H.S. Bus Drivers Maintain Best Safety Record in N. C.

TROY WASHAM gives safe, go-ahead signal to lost bus.

BUS DRIVERS

Unique in the United States is North Carolina's public school bus driver program. North Carolina boasts the largest percentage of student bus drivers, although they are in the minority as compared to adult chauffeurs of other states. Requirements for the responsible job of a bus driver include a written test as well as a driving test. For two days a training officer instructs and approves the driving ability of each individual. Monthly records are kept by each of the eleven drivers of daily mileage totaling 300 miles. Due to the congestion and traffic in Hickory, H.H.S. bus drivers have one of the toughest runs in the state. Each driver is also required to check the mechanical devices on the bus assigned to him every day. With the best safety record in North Carolina, Hickory student bus drivers maintain the organization's objective of cautious driving and transporting an average of 1202 students to their respective schools.

Under the supervision of the Distributive Education Club of America, students can obtain an education while working regularly. Preparing young people for the business world is an all important goal of D.E.C.A. Working as salaried employees, the members of this club gain experience and business knowledge through the school employment program. Besides becoming more responsible and mature, members also become acquainted with local merchants. Many of these students continue in these positions or others of similar nature following graduation. Perhaps the most significant feature of Distributive Education is the fact that students obtain an academic education, combined with a knowledge of economic conditions today.

SUB-JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB

Interest in community welfare and the emotional strength to combat the harassing trials of initiation are essentials for membership in the Sub-Junior Woman's Club. A previous enterprise to be revitalized this year is regular visitation to retarded children at the Western Carolina Center in Morganton. Federated last year, Sub-Juniors find time to sponsor the clash of junior and senior girls in the Powder Bowl football game. A summer fashion show in the midst of winter ice and snow gives the girls another break from sober activities. The culminating function of the group is aiding the Hickory Junior Woman's Club in providing college scholarships for two Negro girls.

KEY CLUB

Boys shed masculine attire to enter a girl's world for the annual initiation into the all-male Key Club. Civic spirited members use proceeds from selling light bulbs and candy to brighten faces of needy children at Thanksgiving and Christmas. Their community sponsor, the Kiwanis Club, supports these philanthropic services. Love of fun characterizes lively weekly meetings, annual dance, and participation in district and state conventions

No secret masks the purpose of the Order of DeMolay — to develop youths capable of accepting responsibilities of mature citizenship. The Hickory Order last year attended the convention in Charlotte and the conclave in Greensboro, and won the state softball and rifle championships. LIBRARY CLUB Dewey decimals become more than Greek to Library Club members. These volunteers check out books and help to process new materials. Last fall, the Hickory High Library Club was host to the Southwestern District Library Clubs' annual convention. The club's president was the state head in 1964-1965. Each spring this group co-operates with the junior high schools in celebrating National Library Week. The club's motto, "Books are the Key to Knowledge," is especially emphasized during this week in April.

ENGINEERS'

"Today's teenager, tomorrow's leader" is a phrase frequently used in the Engineers' Club. This organization promotes interest in new fields of engineering and encourages vocational planning. The club visits local industrial plants, among them Shuford Mills and General Electric, where they see engineering vocations in practice. This year, in addition to field trips, members are required to present three science projects. This five-year-old club at HHS is affiliated with the Junior Engineers' Technical Society of America (JETS)

Those desiring to investigate further their study of Chemistry find the Chemistry Club a reservoir of additional information. Speakers relate to members Chemistry's vital importance in our modern, everyday lives. Ringing of bells, sharpening of pencils, and clattering of notebooks are common sounds in the world of teachers. For those who wish to enter this world, the Future Teachers of America has been established. Members become familiar with their prospective vocation by correcting papers, recording grades, and supervising classes during study halls, under the direction of a teacher. This is of mutual value, helping the teacher with his work and aiding the student in determining his vocation. To learn about modern methods of teaching, voluntary delegates attend the yearly educator's convention at Wake Forest College, Winston-Salem, in the fall.

SPANISH CLUB

Seven Spanish-speaking students and their adviser spearheaded Hickory High's three week academic invasion of Mexico last summer. Assisted by proceeds from the Spanish Club's yearly candy sale, another group will have this "travel and learn" opportunity next summer. The annual visit to Mexico, a great incentive to study Spanish, provides members with understanding of Spanish-speaking people, their customs, and dialects.

The large enrollment in the Spanish Club this year resulted in a division in the organization. This innovation provides separate clubs for students of Spanish II and of Spanish III.

Dramatizing the Roman Latin Club Banquet is a week of servitude for initiates; swords clash, masters demand, slaves obey. Having survived this ordeal, new members carry out plans for the year's activities. In the winter Latin clubbers go to Belmont Abbey, hear High Mass, and after the service, tour the church under the guidance of a priest. Traveling to the North Carolina Junior Classical League Convention, the students display their knowledge in contests which deal with Roman history, word derivation, and mythology. This contest as well as programs at meetings revive enthusiasm for culture of an ancient world.

Elected each spring, the cheerleaders serve to unify the student body behind the school's athletic teams. Beginning in August to practice routines for the football season, the boosters assume extra responsibilities when school starts. Maintaining a bulletin board and raising the flag each day are duties performed by the cheerleaders in their effort to symbolize the school's spirit.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

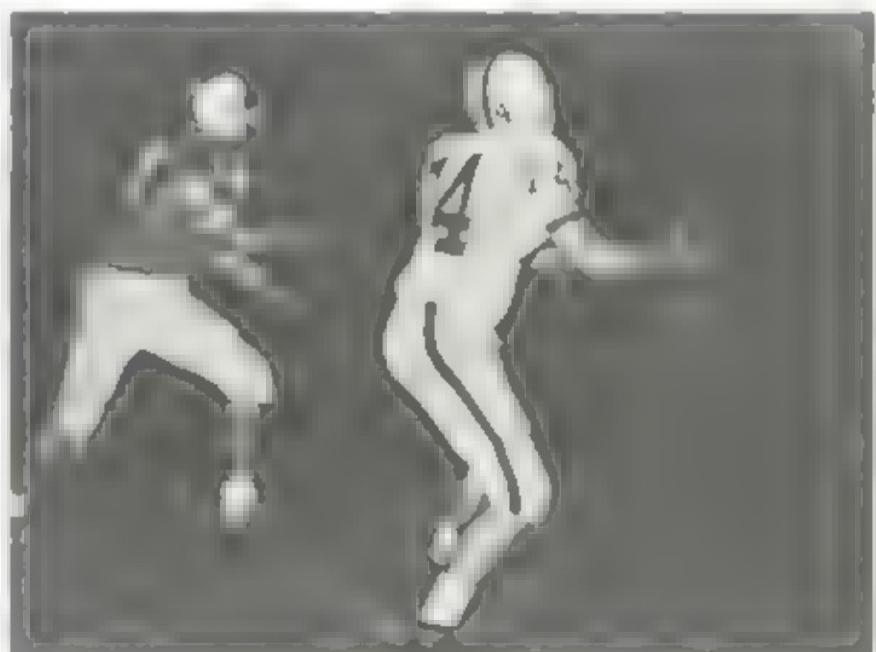

Acclaimed the best 3A Football team in North Carolina, the H H.S. Varsity squad began one of its most promising seasons last fall. Mid-season troubles, however, cost the Tornadoes their number one position. Although Hickory did not win the conference title, it was in contention throughout the season.

Capturing the headlines with its victory over 4A Ashley in the initial contest, Hickory faced its schedule confidently. The Tornadoes accumulated many conference credits until they met rival Wilkes Central on the Eagles' home field. Hickory's defeat by the North Wilkesboro grididers proved the biggest upset of the season. Rallying after the loss of their homecoming game to Watauga, the Tornadoes soundly beat Lenoir. Then, with the conference championship still within reach, Hickory faced powerful Morganton. Trouncing the Wildcats in a furious 35-28 struggle, Hickory then proceeded to shut out Newton in its final game. With a 7-2 conference record, H H S. held second place at the season's end.

J. V. FOOTBALL

An early shortage of players created problems for Coach Mark Lyerly's Junior Varsity squad this season. This, combined with a tough schedule, consisting of only three home games, made the pre-season outlook questionable. The second year of the new J. V. Conference began with a lone victory for HHS, followed by two defeats. Renewed support, however, from the student body during the fourth week of the season brightened Hickory's prospects considerably, as several new players turned up to give the team increased strength.

Following defeats by Gastonia and powerful Marion, Hickory finally asserted itself, the triumph over Valdese proving the turning point of the season. In this and the next four games the Junior Tornadoes allowed only six points. As the season came to a close, it turned into a genuine photo-finish. With final conference standings depending upon the last game, Hickory set its seasonal scoring record with a 47-20 victory over Morganton. This left the Junior Tornadoes in a three way tie for first place with Marion and Morganton.

AMONG THE FALLEN LEAVES and early shadows of October, the Junior Tornadoes prepare to culminate a long drive with a score.

Tornadoes Secure Tournament Berth with 17 - 5 Record

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Height and experience were the big questions at the beginning of the varsity season this year. Losing four of the starters on last year's championship team, Coach Mark Lyerly looked to his newcomers for the answers to these questions. The 1966 Tornadoes did not disappoint their coach as they compiled a 17-5 record and captured second place in the conference. Leading the Hickory team were Co-Captains Albert Land and John Clark, who were the leading rebounder and high scorer, respectively. Forward Allen Clark also supported the under-the-basket play. Compensating for height with speed, Coach Lyerly frequently used the triple threat of three guards, Toby Morgan, Mike Mallon, and Danny White. At the season's end, the Tornadoes entered the Bi-Conference Tournament where they defeated Belmont, but were edged out by Shelby in the second game.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

Enthusiasm and speed marked the 1966 J. V. season. With a large turnout for the initial practice, Coach Jim Garrett put together a quick, high-scoring team with skill in every phase of the game. While center Gary Lawson and forward Brent Rozzelle dominated the backboards, Larry Sisk compiled the highest shooting percentage

A tight full court press effectively contained opposing offenses and led to the Junior Tornadoes' high scores. Scoring more than fifty points in all but four games, the team's totals approached the century mark twice. Beaten only by Newton, the J. TORNADOETTE MENTOR Frank Berger explains a change in strategy

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Retaining all of last year's starters, the 1966 Tornadoettes entered the season with an advantage in experience and skill. Finishing the season with a second place conference standing, the girls owed their success in part to this advantage. Another factor was transfer student Pat Watts who contributed extra strength and height under the boards. While Gail Golden led the Tornadoettes in the category of shooting with a 13 point average, guards Sue Speagle and Walda Parker were rated equal to, or better than, any in the conference by Coach Frank Berger. With ample support from the bench, the Tornadoettes out-scored their opponents on the average, 42 to 25.

The girls began their season strongly, building a record of high-margin victories. Defeated only twice, each time by first-place Morganton, the girls gained the second-place seeding in the tournament. Trouncing East Rutherford in the first round, the Tornadoettes were eliminated by Chase in the semi-finals.

BASEBALL

A base hit, a fanned batter, a stolen base followed by a roar from the crowd—each was a familiar sight to HHS baseball fans last spring. With many starters returning, the team's progress during the season was marked by victory after victory.

Under the leadership of Coach Mark Livery, Hickory battled its way through 10 games without being defeated to win the 3-A Northwestern District Conference. In a duel for the B Conference title HHS suffered its first defeat at the hands of Shelby, 4-0.

DAILY PRACTICE rewards Lonnie Coulter with a mighty forty-eight foot heave at East Mecklenburg

TRACK

Clad anything but thinly, the Hickory High track team braved the wintry air of March to begin practice for the 1965 season. With eleven lettermen returning, the team faced their first meet optimistically. Spring rains, however, cancelled the first two scheduled meets.

Competition finally began with a meet pitting the HHS cindermen with 4-A opponents. Rising to the stiffer competition, Hickory tied for second place. Returning to conference contests, the Tornadoes then amassed an impressive chain of victories. Continuing this success to the Conference and Bi-Conference meets, the HHS thinclads were finally edged out by North Rowan in the Association contest.

TENNIS

Engineered by experience, Coach Jack Daugherty and the Hickory High netters again produced a perfect season. During the months of April and May, the Hickory group rolled past every opponent in regular season play. Demonstrating strength in singles as well as doubles matches, the team possessed the balance vital for success. This balance, coupled with reserve strength, proved to be the answer to last year's successful season.

The Hickory netters started their season in April by capturing a win over Kings Mountain. As the season progressed, the team asserted itself with shut outs over Rutherfordton-Spindale and Mt. Holly as well as wins over its rivals, Shelby and Statesville.

GOLF

Despite the perennial dampness of spring, the golf team began practice early last season in preparation for the rapidly approaching initial match. As the season progressed, Hickory found it had its best golf team in many years. Sparked by the scoring of a transfer student, David Reich, as well as two sophomores, Hickory placed first in four of its nine matches.

Along with Reich, seniors Terry Watts and Jack Williams led the scoring for the H.H.S. team. Consistent low scores from all players proved a formidable obstacle to opposing teams and helped to produce a successful season. A direct result of Hickory's scoring ability was the presentation of the coveted Medalist Award to four of its six players.

Although Hickory boasted a strong team from the beginning of the season, a first-place victory did not materialize until the first home match. It was followed by several further triumphs, the team never finishing lower than second in any match. The season was climaxed by the Association match, where Hickory emerged in a tie for first place.

CAUGHT IN OPPOSITE PHASES of their swings, Larry Stoll and Phil Friday display two important essentials of golf—balance and co-ordination.

SCHOOL BOARD AND ADMINISTRATION

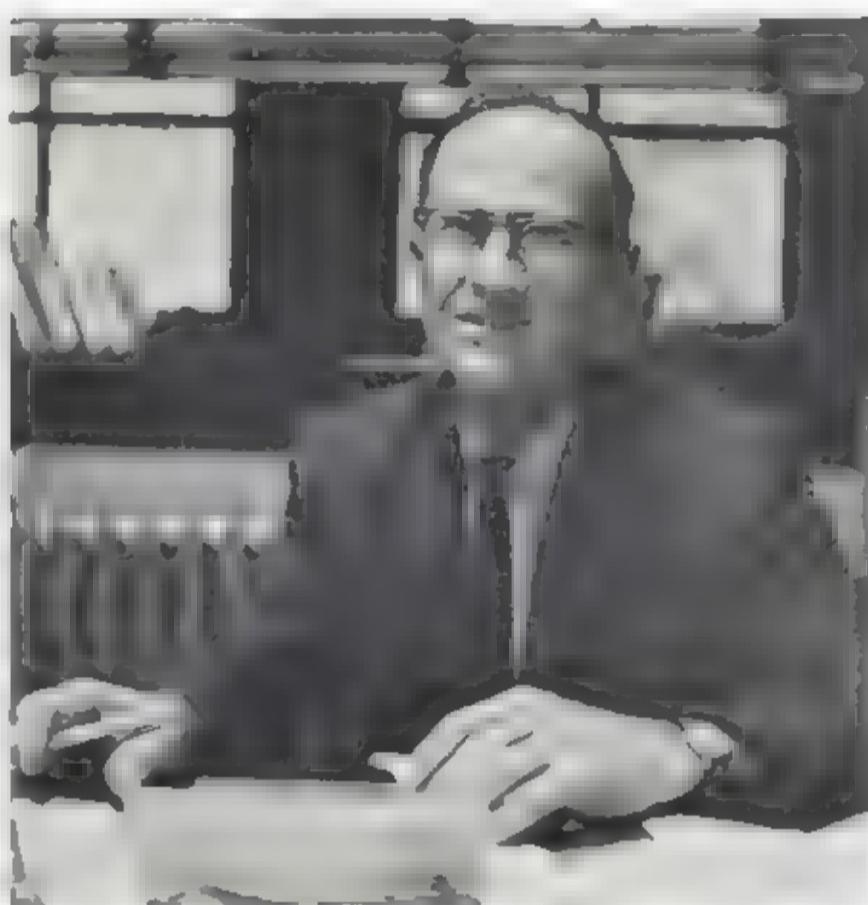

Directly responsible for overseeing the education of 7,000 school students is the Hickory City School Administration. The school board, composed of six men and one woman, initiates policies for educational enrichment and long range plans for improvement to be executed by the administration. The board, serving without remuneration, investigates property for school facilities, assigns teachers, and allocates state and local funds. Citizens' requests, petitions and complaints, students with specific academic needs — these additional problems come before the board.

OFFICE STAFF

School secretary at H H S. might capture first place among all the careers requiring patience, diligence, and a full-time smile. She must complete records, file important papers and supervise the school's correspondence. In addition to answering the phone, she acts as "keeper of the keys," detention hall supervisor, visitors' receptionist, and general information booth.

Another busy office staff member is the assistant principal. In addition to duties as a teacher, driving instructor, and bus supervisor, he works as a "Man Friday" to the principal, supervising the school in his absence. The third familiar face in the H H.S. office is the school treasurer. Sixth period finds her behind the adding machine and balance books. Deposit slips, supply needs, and cash are checked and approved by her.

Counselors Advise, Encourage, Merit Appreciation

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT

The busiest department? No one can say, but the guidance department directly or indirectly influences every H H S. student. Specific responsibilities of this department are registering students according to ability, sponsoring College Day each fall, administering achievement, aptitude and scholarship tests, stocking college bulletins and job opportunity pamphlets, and processing college transcripts and post graduate recommendations. In addition, personal student conferences and parent-counselor meetings are often time consuming. Visual proof that the guidance counselors are vital to the academic progress is the activity surrounding those "special rooms down the hall."

LIBRARY

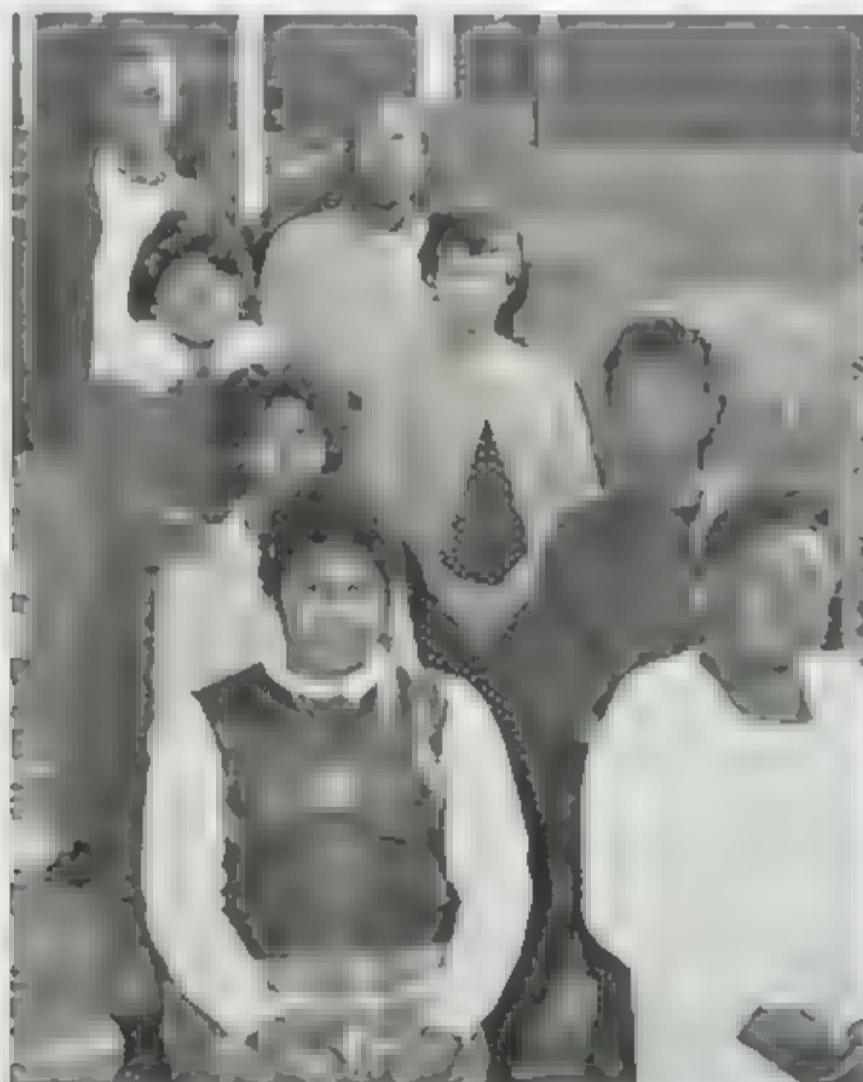

One of the best furnished school libraries in the state, the Hickory High School Library has a reading room, an audio visual center, a lounge, and a committee meeting place. Students often spend study hall periods doing individual research and recreational reading. Others visit with scheduled classes for specific instruction and research projects. By checking out books and performing other routine duties, student assistants free the department librarian and library secretary to aid individuals in finding books, films, and magazines and to catalogue and order new materials.

An additional lunchroom wing and assignment of all three classes to eat on campus confronted lunchroom workers with problems of time and food preparation. Working from early morning till late afternoon preparing meals for students and faculty and tidying up afterwards, lunchroom workers perform a vital job for HHS.

Maintenance of clean attractive grounds and buildings is the duty of another group of workers. Janitors and maids spend their hours utilizing broom and dustpan, mop and dust cloth to insure top quality general upkeep of high school facilities.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

As cautious pecks are replaced with the skill of rhythmic typing, amateur typists develop their abilities in Typing I and II. Shorthand scribblings become meaningful symbols and bookkeeping puzzles, accurate accounts. Through practice, the commercial students of Hickory High School prepare for the complexities within the adult business world.

New books, office equipment, practice machines, and persistent teachers are the fundamentals of the department. Through timed writings, dictations, and bookkeeping procedure drills, students increase their chance of becoming successful, competent business men and women. The business-like atmosphere of the commercial department's reception room, and the availability and demonstration of equipment in the office practice room afford additional learning medias. Projects aligned with assignments and department displays add reality to the department's activities and impress the business students with the magnitude of the commercial world's challenge.

Planning a weekly menu, making and repairing furniture, and getting along with co-workers and employers are a part of the training offered in the practical arts department of Hickory High School. Homemaking includes sewing skills, house management, and child care. Physical fitness is attained through participation in the physical education program. Woodworking and mechanical drawing are part of the program of the industrial arts course.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

As the necessity of communication increases, English, both written and spoken, takes on a new importance. In accordance, the importance of high school English increases. Transparencies on creative writing, reading machines, and extensive supplementary reading material enhance the effectiveness of the HHS English department.

Monthly H H S. English Council meetings give the teachers an opportunity to explore new teaching methods. Films on various genres of literature widen the scope of each course. The 1965 National Council of Teachers of English, which met in Boston, served as both a refresher course and an opportunity to gain new teaching material and skills for H.H S. teachers who attended. Thus, the growing importance of English parallels the growth of the school's department.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

Mutual interests and understanding between peoples of the world could lead to a future of peaceful co-existence. With this in mind, the foreign language department extends broad fields of study to HHS students. Through the language laboratory, additional teachers, and history and travel units, the department offers various approaches to Spanish, French, and Latin. Outside the classrooms, educational trips have been conducted. Twelve French students will spend the summer of 1966 studying in France. Spanish students will visit Mexico. Perhaps the specifics of the language will be forgotten, but the impressed picture of foreign peoples is indelible.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Gradual expansion, a phase of any high school, is evident in the Science Department. The need to obtain modern science-teaching equipment and materials for advanced classes has been met with new textbooks. Biology, the study of man and life, is basically a sophomore subject. Chemistry, a science of experimentation and demonstration, is taken by juniors. Physics, a more difficult science dealing with the physical world, molecular motion, and energy, introduces seniors to new theories and prepares many for further scientific studies. The three HHS sciences introduce students to the vast world of scientific knowledge, offer an opportunity to enter science fairs and summer workshops, and often initiate a life profession.

A HOT DAY, a morning break, and summer school students gather at the window to relax, to talk, and to cool off.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Longer, hotter days mean summer. Summer means vacations, a job, and fun. But summer can include study, homework, and learning. Geared to the needs of local students, the summer school program at H.H.S. varies from year to year. Whether a student is repeating a failed course, earning extra credits, or working toward easing his winter schedule, he attends six weeks of classes five hours a day. Closely associated with summer school is the Drivers' Training Program. Six instructors provide the necessary classroom and behind-the-wheel hours for students of driving age. In the five years since its inception, the summer school offerings have doubled. Thus the halls and classes of H.H.S. are still peopled when the regular year ends with May. The summer school program is an established part of the annual academic schedule.

IN ONE OF the courses of H.H 5. summer school, Andi Block-welder and Mike Hewat test a plant for sugar content.

THE SUMMER duties of recording test grades, writing character references, figuring class placement enroll counselors in "summer school."

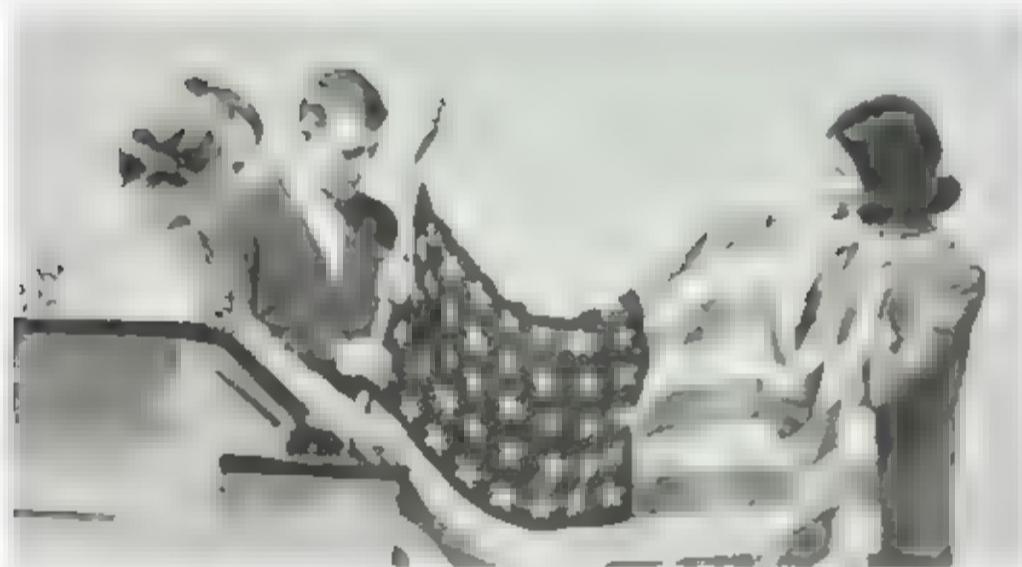

AS THE thermometer rises, "beach fever" hits summer school classes full force. Friday afternoon seems light years away to David Tallent

Encompass Large Numbers of Hickory High Students

FOUR HICKORY High School juniors represented the student body at the 1965 session of North Carolina's Governor's School held at Salem College in Winston-Salem. Tom Taylor, chorus; Martha Seagraves, drama; June Cline, dance; and Anne Lofterty, social science.

THE SENIOR class of 1965 chose vivacious Nancy Carol Bost as Girl of the Year. HHS's former head cheerleader presently attends Wake Forest College.

FIVE seniors were singled out to receive traditional football honors. Charles Dellinger, a Merit finalist, maintained the highest scholastic average; Johnny Hudson was named best blocker; Steve Kilby and Toby Morgan, Shrine Bowlers, received, respectively, the best defense and most valuable player awards; and Mike Reinhardt was noted as the most improved player on the team.

HONORS AND AWARDS

"I am proud to present this award to . . ." Though honors are directed to the outstanding few, the entire student body reflects a sense of pride. The top scorer on a national test, the choice for a civic workshop, a person honored by the student body, an outstanding artist or musician; whether the award is for athletic ability or scholastic merit, the recipient's long hours of practice or study are justified. The tangible side of distinction may be a gleaming trophy, an impressive certificate, or a letter sweater, yet the background of achievement is more encompassing. Each contribution to the excellence of Hickory High withstands time and memory. "I am proud to present this award to . . ."

CLASSES

SOPHOMORES—Tension and anticipation precede registration . . . confusion and fear dominate a maze of classes and schedules . . . monstrous proposals become ordinary homework . . . strangers become friends . . . H H.S. becomes their school

JUNIORS—Club memberships create responsibility . . . apprehension dissolves and friendships are stabilized . . . college boards become grim reality . . . foreign lands beckon prospective A F S.'ers . . . leadership potential materializes in a year of transition

SENIORS — Last year terminates apprenticeships
two long years culminate in a lack of distinction decisions of work, and college merge with anticipation of senior week, and graduation . . . job applications and college interviews interrupt daily routines . . . tears and laughter symbolize the conflicting emotions characteristic of graduation.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

Confusion, change, and opportunity spotlight the year for sophomores of Hickory High School. From the tension and anxiety of registration to joy and relief after final exams, they find their schedules a compendium of emotions: the anguish of a failure, the excitement of new activities, the trials of getting an education. Gradually, faces and names become familiar and tenth graders develop a sense of belonging. Experiencing the pride of being a part of H.H.S., sophomores realize they will exchange their apprenticeship for the honor and demands of leadership.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

Between the graduating class and the newcomers, the Junior class assumes the working echelon at Hickory High. The middlemen now begin to prepare themselves for the leadership they will assume as seniors.

Leaving their apprenticeship behind them, juniors participate more actively in school functions. Now as upperclassmen they play varsity sports and many are inducted into the membership of organizations. Although most honors are received during the senior year, juniors are also recipients of various laurels. To climax a year of added work and responsibility, the juniors are planners, financiers, decorators, and hosts of the Junior-Senior

THE SENIOR CLASS

Crisis, conflict, calamity, climax—all are emotions descriptive of the graduating class at H.H.S. Energetic young men and women, enthusiastic with new plans and new exams, advance to a year in which they must assume additional responsibility and school leadership.

With more maturity, awareness, and foresight, each senior begins to meet the challenges of the adult world into which he will soon be emerging. Armored with the knowledge he has gained during his twelve years of study and experiences with others, the Senior looks forward with anticipation to his unfolding future of challenge and opportunity.

GRADUATION

Remember, Senior, remember the day twelve years ago when you apprehensively walked through a door and found your desk. Oh, and that first impression of Junior High —gargantuan lockers and long lighted halls with all those open doors. Remember your first dance and the way you cheered your team to victory against its biggest rival or shared its darkest defeat.

You'll never forget the mystery of registration at High School and how quickly it became your High School. Remember also, Senior, your first semester test and that impossible English theme. Remember the dash to be first in the lunch line. You sat on the wall in the sun until the last moment before fifth period. Remember the carefree Twirl dance compared to the regality of the Jr.-Sr

There will be no more pink slips, TWIG folds, LOG days and pep rallies. A new door has opened for you, Senior. Tennyson said that one becomes a part of all he encounters in life. May all your experiences mold you, enrich you, fulfill you. Remember, Senior

Tips on Dips

Stick with your boat . . .

Alvey's got the right idea—a boat or canoe floats even when it's filled with water. Stay with it and swim or paddle it to shore. This works even if the boat you're using has an outboard motor, if it's of proper size. Learn in a Red Cross class how to be safe in the water.

Good Light Keeps Young Minds Bright!

Good school work depends on proper lighting at home. Lamps used to read and study by should be glare-and shadow-free, have white-lined translucent shades with diffusers and bulbs of 150 watts or more. To protect your sight, check your lighting now.

Hardy-Paula P!

Well - where can I start? We've been through so much this year I don't hardly know what to say... except that you're doing, if anything, what you do! I don't know what I would have done without you all the time. I'm grateful in helping & everything else I think it's not something to do with money -- maybe I hasn't come to know if we are good at the job - I do, God will be good.
I hope we are doing a lot better. You will certainly get a certain straight-out. I know you will you'll make such a cute couple, & I wish you two will the happiness in the world. I hope we are stopped you don't know what a great thing you've got now. We'll have to fit together one summer. Well both our fathers will be working - A-Ha! Since Dancy gave me the idea that we can have my dad a "D."
as in SHUFORD-MILLS, INC. riding. O.K.

I want to thank you again for helping me with starting whatever I need. I want to thank you!!! (100%) you were always there. HICKORY, NORTH CAROLINA Here I have been half the friend to you as you have been to me, and I hope our friendship last for a long time to come because Dancy & me are married,
I just wanted to come up to wherever you'll be living (it might be a year - might not, & next July 14th we'll be good to you & don't let anyone get under your skin. These middle ways are good at that.
Good luck always to a great, good-looking girl!

Love ya!
Dancy

NOTES ABOUT THE BOOK

The 1966 HICKORY LOG was designed, printed and bound by Observer Printing House in Charlotte, North Carolina.

The cover was embossed by Kingskraft Press in Kingsport, Tennessee

The body of the book is set in 10 point Metro light with 8 point Metro light used for cutlines. Headlines are 24 point Tempo medium, caps and lower case. The paper stock is one hundred pound enamel gloss

EDITOR'S LAST WORD

Hickory High School is an intangible, an emotion, a state of mind. It is a beginning characterized by an overwhelming desire to win, to exceed, to belong. And with this desire comes the satisfaction of achievement, the frustration of a failure, the soft voices of a boy and girl, the exhaustion of effort, the rapid enthusiasm of a pep rally, the tears of defeat. Yet, H.H.S. is an ending. A time of rapid transition has evolved, and those remaining traditions of H.H.S. are captured within these pages as preparation for the new begins. Untold hours of planning resulting in innovations have been part of our effort to crystallize the days of 1965 and 1966 at H.H.S., to capture those numerous qualities—traditional and characteristic, yet unique.

Despite the innovations in lay-out and design, in sophistication, and in format; pictures and words, regardless of how they are arranged, are tangible materials and can only produce a fragmentary portrayal of the emotions of our lives. Her people, her past, present, phases, progress, and prospects have been examined, and these, the many facets of H.H.S., reflect an insight into the eternity and void between a beginning and an ending—an insight to be augmented by your thoughts and recollections as you turn these pages of the 1966 HICKORY LOG that record your beginnings and your endings.

RODGER DICKS

Dearest, dearest Paula,
(How's that?)

We've been eating lunch together ever since we've been at HHS. Our discussions and talks we've had have really helped me a great deal. I hope that we have lunch together next year since it's going to be open. All the things that we've done have been so crazy and yet fun I'll never forget all of it. I have read what people have written in your log about Howard. They don't know the half of it. Paula, Howard is really crazy about you and you'll get everything straightened out, it might take some time though. When Howard used to go with Janice he wouldn't call her for months. And then one day, he'd suddenly pop up and say, "Hi." (Don't get mad at me I'm just trying to encourage you.) I'm sure going to miss being home this summer with all my friends and especially you. You're so crazy! As I've said before all we've gotten done this year is just constantly being mad at someone. I think I'm through now. It was so hard to get along with. (I might fall in love in Canada with dark hair and handsome.) Paula, I want to thank you for listening to my problems about ___, and helping me to forget. I know that you've gotten so sick of hearing me mention Ronnie but it has helped me to talk about it. You're a great girl Paula! One in a million! I hope that you'll go to King's art class. I might have a car by then, if I were you I wouldn't worry too much about Howard! (again) He loves you and he always will. Thanks for being so trustworthy, and most of all for being my friend. I hope that the future brings you good luck and success.

P.S. You're also good-looking

Best Wishes

Paula,

Well we've known each other for two years now. The first time I saw you I thought you were so pretty and I still think you are. From just talking to you last year, I will tell you were really a great person to know, you always had a smile on your face and was so friendly. I've gotten to know you so well this year, I consider you one of the best friends I've ever had. We've had lots of fun together. I just hope we can have more fun together this summer and next year (maybe we'll getlund together) I hope that we will always be friends because I know its hard to find the right kind of people to have for friends. I hope you and Howard work out okay (I know what you think of him) Danny was really a great guy, Paula, if you know what I mean — where do you find boys that would do anything in the world for you (Danny was the only one I ever knew) I just hope we get to go to the beach together this summer, we'll really have lots of fun and knock those boys ~~over~~ off their feet (I hope) Seriously, you're sweet, good-looking, nice (when you want to be), smart at times and stupid at others. I hope we have some classes together next year. I think you have beautiful clothes, hair, and eyes. Be good and stay out of trouble when I'm not around this summer.

Your friend forever,
Linnie.
